Fields: behavioral economics and applied microeconomics, in particular in the context of communication

Methods: experiments, analysis of observational field data, (applied) theory

Persistent Bias in Advice-Giving

Experiment and theory showing that removing incentives to bias advice does not restore impartial advice.

Reference Price Shifts and Customer Antagonism: Evidence from Reviews for Online Auctions

Uses data from a large-scale sales campaign to show how reference point shifts lead to harmful feedback.

SECONDARY JOB MARKET PAPER, single-authored

De-Biasing Strategic Communication

Theory which shows that disclosing senders' conflict of interests helps rational but hurts naive receivers.

single-authored

Honest Communication in the Digital Age

Online experiment showing that computerized communication causes lies and that liars sort accordingly.

with Alain Cohn and Michel Maréchal

Does the Absence of Human Sellers Bias Bidding Behavior in Auction Experiments?

Theory and experiment on (anti-)social preferences towards the seller in second-price auctions.

Journal of the Economic Science Association, 2017, 3(1): 44-61, with Björn Bartling and Nick Netzer
